AT A GLANCE · SEPTEMBER 2026

The Market in 60 Seconds

Inventory is down from a year ago in both property types, but single-family homes and condos/townhomes are otherwise sending different signals. Here are the four key measures for each, side by side.

Single-Family Homes

vs. September 2025

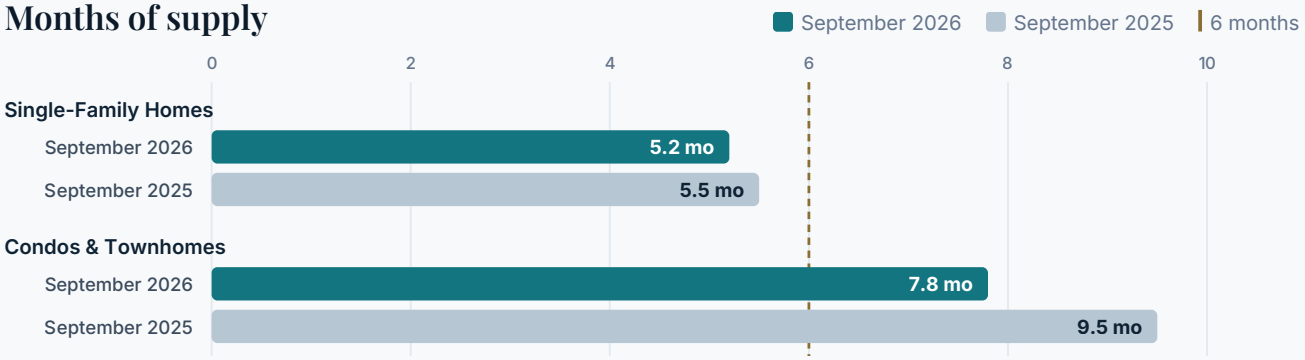

MEDIAN SALE PRICE	CLOSED SALES
$395,000	464
↓ −1.3% from $400,000	↓ −8.7% from 508
ACTIVE INVENTORY	MONTHS OF SUPPLY
2,384	5.2
↓ −1.3% from 2,415	↓ −5.5% from 5.5

Condos & Townhomes

vs. September 2025

MEDIAN SALE PRICE	CLOSED SALES
$337,500	91

SINGLE-FAMILY HOMES

5.2 months

Balanced

Supply eased from 5.5 months; sales closed at 95.7% of original list price, but contract time rose from 44 to 52 days.

CONDOS & TOWNHOMES

7.8 months

Buyer-leaning

Supply down from 9.5 months but still elevated; contract time rose from 69 to 117 days, on a small number of sales.

INTERPRETATION

What the Market Is Telling Us

What the September 2026 figures point to, tied directly to the tables on page 3.

5.2 mo
SINGLE-FAMILY MONTHS OF SUPPLY

Single-family sits close to balanced.

Supply eased from 5.5 to 5.2 months, and the typical sale closed at 95.7% of original list price, up from 95.0%. Against that, median days to contract rose 18.2% to 52. Taken together the two sides roughly offset.

−1.3%
SINGLE-FAMILY MEDIAN PRICE

The single-family median came in just below last year.

The median sale price was $395,000, compared with $400,000 in September 2025, while closed sales slipped 8.7% to 464. A move of this size is within the range the county median has drifted across recent months and is not, on its own, evidence of a broad decline.

−1.3%
SINGLE-FAMILY ACTIVE LISTINGS

There is less on the market than a year ago.

Active single-family listings stood at 2,384, against 2,415 in September 2025. The decline is modest here compared with the counties to the south, which is part of why St. Lucie still reads as the most balanced of the three.

7.8 mo
CONDO/TOWNHOME MONTHS OF SUPPLY

Condos and townhomes remain buyer-leaning.

Active inventory fell 10.6% to 635 and supply dropped from 9.5 months, yet 7.8 months still leaves buyers with options. Median days to contract lengthened to 117 from 69, so sellers should expect a longer marketing period.

91
CONDO/TOWNHOME CLOSINGS

The condo median moves on very few sales.

St. Lucie County is not a large condo market. The median was $337,500 against $272,000 a year earlier, but it rests on 91 closings, so which buildings happened to trade moves it more than any change in what units are worth. Read it alongside 7.8 months of supply, 635 active listings and 93.3% of original list price.

27.6%
SINGLE-FAMILY

42.9%
CONDO/TOWNHOME

CASH SHARE (CALCULATED)

Cash plays a very different role by property type.

27.6% of single-family closings (128 of 464) and 42.9% of condo/townhome closings (39 of 91) were paid in cash, calculated from the reported counts.

County figures blend varied local markets, such as Port St. Lucie, Fort Pierce, Tradition and Hutchinson Island, and conditions in any one of them can differ from the county median.

PRACTICAL GUIDANCE

For Buyers & For Sellers

The same county data calls for different moves depending on which side of the transaction you are on, and which property type you are dealing with.

For Buyers

Single-Family Homes

5.2 mo supply · 52 days · 95.7% of list

- You have time, but not unlimited choice.
  At 5.2 months of supply and 52 median days to contract, up from 44, there is room to see a home and do your diligence. Active listings are still down from 2,415 to 2,384, so the well-priced ones do not wait.
- Offer from closed sales.
  Sales closed at 95.7% of original list price, so there may be less room than you expect. 27.6% of closings were cash (calculated).

Condos & Townhomes

7.8 mo supply · 117 days · 93.3% of list

- Use your leverage.
  At 7.8 months of supply and 117 median days to contract, buyers can often negotiate on price, credits or repairs.
- Don't overread the median.
  The +24.1% median reflects 91 closings in a small condo market. Judge each unit on its building's recent sales, budget, reserves and assessments.

For Sellers

Single-Family Homes

5.2 mo supply · 52 days · 95.7% of list

- Conditions are balanced, so pricing carries the sale.
  At 5.2 months of supply, homes priced to recent closed sales are still closing at 95.7% of original list price, up from 95.0%.
- Plan for a longer marketing period than last year.
  Median days to contract rose from 44 to 52. A realistic first price is what keeps a listing from drifting past that.

Condos & Townhomes

7.8 mo supply · 117 days · 93.3% of list

- Price for a buyer-leaning market.
  With 7.8 months of supply and 117 median days to contract, buyers have options. Precise pricing matters more than usual.
- Don't list off the headline.
  The +24.1% median rests on 91 closings. Price from comparable sales in your building or community, with association documents ready.
